Seasons

Seasons are approximate and vary slightly from year to year. There is some overlap as spring migration merges with summer, or as fall migration begins in late summer. The definitions we use are: [s S A F W]

- s: Spring migration early April early June
- s: Summer: June mid August
- A : Fall migration: August early October
- F: Fall: October November
- w : Winter: late November early April

Abundances

We have combined both the number of birds present and ease of observation to create a scale of "liklihood to see". We use 4 categories to suggest what an "intermediate" birder is likely to observe in the proper season and habitat:

- A Hard to miss
- в Should see
- c May see
- D Lucky to find
- Not found in this season

Several species will most likely be encountered through their song or call rather than by sight, e.g. Ovenbird, Wood Thrush.

This checklist is based on data compiled from many observers of the 150+ species seen at Quincy Bog from 1971 to present. Regularly occurring species are listed separately from accidentals, which can be found at the end of the checklist.

This checklist follows the taxonomy used in "The Sibley Guide to Birds" by David Allen Sibley.
